

A Point of View 'Selective Vision' 11 Feb 2022

to use a walking frame to facilitate daily perambulation

to block access to sth

a lower part of the curb jammed with cars

in an obstructive way

a matter of selfishness

a response to trauma

lustrous locks

to struggle to conceive

to digress

at some level of consciousness sectarianism

populism

a collective failure

facts don't match

a duly manufactured conspiracy to back up your opinion to peer out of the world through sm's eyes

to gain traction

childish rumours

to amplify sth sufficiently often at a thunderous volume to gain a currency of truth

an unsavoury fact

to strengthen your belief to obviate sth

to balloon

to create a new tribe

to polarise

to become a dominant mode

to carry a grudge

malice

jealousy

to bring out the best in people

an unconscious bias

to hijack a phrase

in the culture of debate to jump to conclusions

imbedded preconceptions be cemented into our mental landscape to trigger automatic responses

a selection process

to favour sm over ..

the median salary

to walk in sm's shoes

to extend an analogy

to see straight

to reinforce sectarian thinking inaccurate rendition

to reside in the subconscious

not a wilful act

to fashion meanings to our liking to retrofit by manipulating memory the proverbial acorn

day-to-day thoughtlessness

at the heart of sth

an appalling state

to conceive sth

a single good deed